Dear Rudy,

Sent 12-22-16

- Dan Bross with NPR is more than welcome to talk to me if he can get the Gestapo to allow it. The prison's number is 618-964-1441. They can't legally stop us from talking. So they'll try to illegally stop us. But I really like Dan and hope I can get a half hour with him. Send him your top 10 most powerful You Tubes.

- I still get lots of mail from Patriot Mail Project. I love these people! I wish I could reply to every single person who writes me. But there's just not enough hours in a day to do that. I do feel very loved and cared for to be getting all these thousands of letters. I pull letters out of the bag like lotto numbers and write replies to those ones. I do read ALL the letters I get, EVERY LAST ONE. Some make it into a special pile for very heartfelt and moving letters. It's like getting love letters from my country. I love America and I hope to see her again one day.

Now here's some very serious advise from me to Patriot Mail Project. I'm giving you a jewel. Don't overlook it. PMP needs to reach out to Alexi Pushkof in Moscow Russia. He's the head of the Russian Dumas (Parliaments) Foreign Relations Committee. He's easy to find. He speaks good English and so does most of his staff. He was/is a very respected investigative journalist. He's very approachable, in a Russian sort of way. You won't be disappointed if you stay on it and make the connection. What you need him to do is get international recognition for all of your P3's. Back in 2013, the Russian Federation recognized me as an innocent political prisoner. This had a powerful effect, not only on my case, but also on my mind. It lifted me out of the category of "criminal". And that gave me great strength. The other P3's need that support too.

Every year the Russian Federation publishes a report on human rights abuses in America. I was featured in 2013. But that's only because I had some powerful Russian friends who brought my case to the attention of the right people. The Feds do everything they can (which is a lot!) to scrub these annual reports off the US internet. But you can still get them from the source. It's just blocked by Google and others.

I'd say it would be money well spent to send a representative from PMP to Moscow in person to deliver the names of all your P3's. Whoever goes needs to be classy and well mannered with a fearless heart. The Russians are terse and efficient, but they are genuine. Whoever goes on this diplomatic mission will no doubt be rigorously vetted by the FSB, Russia's security service. And upon return, they will be thrown in a little room and bullied for hours by gangster Feds with an attitude. So pick someone with a lion's heart who radiates calm confident truth.

If you're serious about it and firm up some plans, I could probably arrange some people to welcome you. We can talk more later.

Russia is fighting the same Globalists who overran our government. They know that if America goes up in smoke because of stupid and out of control Feds, the whole world will go up in smoke with it. Believe me, they know what we're up against.

But this is not a game. Just yesterday the Russian Ambassador to Turkey was assassinated on live T.V. by a CIA asset put there during the US led coup attempt. It's a sober business.

So don't send a wimp or a hothead. Send someone intelligent and kind.

Your goal is international recognition for the P3s, ceremonial condemnation of the injustice of US Courts, and a pledge of future solidarity from the Russian state. Do not ask for or accept "material support." That could be seen as espionage. Just go to listen, and to present a case.

I would say to take an international attorney with you, but I only know one attorney who's not a limp dick. And he's busy. So just keep it open, honest, and simple and you'll be fine. Film the whole trip. The world will watch.

This is very important stuff. It's what Ben Franklin contributed to America. He went to France and pled the cause of his countrymen. It's time again.

The right person is out there. And you know who you are. You've just been summoned. Your heart will not betray you.

Love,

- Schaeffer Cox
