

Weeding & Edging

Edging is typically done in the spring; the purpose of edging is to provide a clean separation between turf and planting beds. Our landscape professionals can edge your planting beds to give it that crisp clean look which enhances the overall property look.

Weeding maintenance is a general maintenance of your planting beds; basic weeding, dividing of any perennials as needed, pinching any flowers back after blooming occurs and maintain a defined edge between the lawn space and beds. This can include repairing edging materials that have heaved out of the ground do to freeze thaw conditions.

Bed Maintenance can be done as often as the client requests; from every week, twice a month to three times a season. How often the landscape gets maintained all depends on what type of landscape the homeowner has along with how mature the planting beds are. More formal gardens will require more attention then an informal one due to the need for a more manicured look.
