

The Compass Bit

The Compass Bit is the newest innovative link to 21st Century horse training. It is an incredible tool that works by design with the natural instincts and function of a horse, and not by fear or intimidation. There is nothing else on the market like it. Here's how it works: the Compass Bit connects the inside eye with the corner of the mouth and the inside foot. The protrusions of this bit sit on the inside of the Zygomaticus muscle in the horse's cheek. The design creates relaxation in the Zygomaticus muscle creating a soft response and changes the horse's thought process and actions to willingness. Horses do like and have positive responses to this new innovative bit. You and your horse deserve the best - and the best connection with each other. The Compass Bit will move you and your horse to the next level of winning. To learn more about how the Compass Bit works, or to order please visit www.compasshorsetraining.com.

Jessica Lott and her horse Viper competing in the Compass Snaffle Bit