Front Retreat

Joy Ross Interior Design

This residence was designed as an open floor plan home for casual low maintenance living. The house was also designed to take advantage of the western view and sunsets with the back of the house completely opening up to the covered lanai and pool area. The large covered porches on the front and back of the home and exterior details of the home are reminiscent of a Carolina lowcounty home.

Mitchell E. Miller, Village Architects AIA

When meeting with the clients they described how they wanted a comfortable home that wouldn't distract from the fabulous view of the Loxahatchee River. Given the layout of the home and the incredible location I was excited about the interior design possibilities. My approach was to keep it light and fresh while using accent colors that coordinated throughout each room. We added design features such as beams and wainscot paneling to add architectural depth. The result is a beautiful home that makes each day feel like a vacation. The clients love to share that feeling and entertain often.
