Editor's Notes

Interior designer Joy P. Ross is our business personality profile this month featuring a look at what this interior designer would create for her own home. Our writer Deborah Desser got the scoop on the design strategies Joy employed to create a eclectic environment for her growing family.

Jon DiDonna of Trilogy Construction created a contemporary renovation of an aging residence in the popular Frenchman's Creek community. White walls accentuate a clean minimalist interior with elegant finishes throughout. Check out the Trilogy Construction website for more of John's impressive work.

On the cover this month is a timeless architectural design by Roger Janssen of Dailey Janssen Architects. Onshore Construction of Jupiter brought the design to life and Marc Michaels Interiors completed the decorating. Landscape architecture was completed by Parker - Yannette Design Group of Jupiter.

At Home With Int

Joy P. Ross

Interior designer, Joy P. Ross, recently welcomed us into her own residence, a new construction in Tequesta, inspired by, “That eclectic vintage feel and Mediterranean style of Palm Beach,” as Joy aptly puts it. She has paired several design styles and color pallets to break traditional molds... and it works magnificently!

Interior Designer Joy Ross

Joy graduated from the University of Florida in interior design, and at a very early age (we're talking first grader) knew instinctively that she was going to be a designer. Her mother designed their family home, not realizing that Joy was already taking notes!

After graduating from UF, Joy worked several years with Peacock + Lewis, Architects and Planners. She is one of a rare breed of designers that can design from the inside out, understanding the intricacies of electrical design, prior to choosing the light fixtures!

Our visit to Ms. Ross' home was virtually a trip to the candy store, as simply styled, dark-stained wood flooring guided us throughout both levels, revealing a solid staircase with two-toned tile facades, and an upper landing, where ceiling beams and five intriguing wall panels add great architectural interest.

Joy's selection of geometric prints, bold florals and color blocking add stimulating color to each of the rooms, playing off of lighter upholstery fabrics. One of her greatest challenges was finding the perfect side panel draperies adjoining the living and dining rooms, which was successfully discovered at F. Schumacher & Co.

PRIVATE RESIDENCE BUILT BY FIRST FLORIDA DEVELOPMENT. INTERIOR DESIGN BY SIMONSEN-HICKOK INTERIORS.

Kitchen, and master and guest baths, are intentionally and selectively minimalistic, essentially silent partners to the gorgeously colored textiles highlighting the rest of the house.

While most of the rooms show off bold primary colors, Joy went with medium shades of green and pink, paired with white painted built-ins and dark wood, for her toddler's room.

Gigi is only thirteen months, but we're curious to see if one day the sign announcing, "Joy P. Ross Interior Design," will lengthen to include & Daughter!

Author and Editor

A marble statue of a woman, likely a classical figure, shown in a three-quarter view. She has long, wavy hair and is wearing a draped garment. Her right hand is raised to her chin, with her index finger pointing upwards, suggesting a state of deep thought or contemplation. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the contours of her face and the texture of the marble.
